Editorial

The Sabaragamuwa University Journal from being a national, modest magazine directed to multidisciplinary academic research, has developed to being a peer-reviewed, international journal directed at all professionals involved in agriculture, applied sciences, humanities, social sciences, business and tourism management and surveying sciences. Over the years, Sabaragamuwa University Journal has gained valuable experience by organizing several international conferences and publishing wide range of articles related to different disciplines.

A novel and very significant step in the history of the Sabaragamuwa University Journal was achieved very recently with the commencement of publishing it as an open access online journal in Sri Lanka Journals Online: www.sljol.info. Consequences of that the peer-reviewed article appears online immediately upon acceptance. The Sabaragamuwa University Journal has preferred open access publishing for several importance reasons. In particular, when articles are freely and universally accessible online, they are highly visible and read by a wide audience. So, the authors could hold copyright for their publications and grant anyone who is interested in the field, the right to reproduce and disseminate the findings provided in the article incorporating proper acknowledgement.

Apparently the Sabaragamuwa University Journal is looking forward to linking science and day-to-day works, assisting all of us to construct a better future for the next generations while serving for the sustainability.
